Reflection for pass experience

This experience at Church street school was quite a pleasure. Going through this pass experience was a lot of fun and was able to interact with the kids on many different levels. Going around to each of the classrooms was great experience because it made me realize that not every student is on the same level and that you can have the students and second grade grasp the lesson that the third-graders couldn't even grasp. However, one day that stood out to me the most was the day when I went to one classroom and then following that same class to the gymnasium was something I enjoyed. Developing that rapport with that class was good for the experience at Church street. Having multiple experiences within the same school allowed me for a better experience, which ultimately allowed me to become a better well rounded person.
